STREET WORK CAN ALL BE COMPLETED

Mayor Yeiser Does Not Share Apprehension of Board.

Revenue Will Exceed Expectations and Situation Is Not at All Unusual.

NO TROUBLE IS ANTICIPATED

"There will be no trouble about completing the street work mapped out for this year," was Mayor Yeiser's reply to inquiry concerning the action of the board of public works in referring street improvement ordinances back to the general council.

The board of public works has been investigating the finances of the city and fails to see where money will be secured to pay for the city's share of street improvements ordered in addition to the streets to be improved with the bond money. The board has referred the matter of financing it to the council to make provisions. It is said that only $2,261.10 remains in the city's hands for street purposes, and that the ordinary expenses of the street department will be $1,500. It is estimated that at least $6,000 will be needed to do the new work ordered on Jefferson street, South Fourth street, First street and Washington street from Third street to First street; also Jones street, and one or two others.

Of the street improvements indicated the work on First street from Broadway to Washington street and Washington street between First and Third streets comes out of the bond issue and need not be considered. The other work on Jones, Sowell and South Fourth streets, and Fifth avenue, the property owners pay for all but the intersections.

"I was called into the board meeting yesterday," said Mayor Yeiser, "and asked about the situation. I told the members that if the council has ordered the work done the proper thing to do is to comply. The council is responsible for all its orders."

"There will be no trouble in meeting the expense of the work. Those intersections probably will cost not to exceed $50 each, and I believe the expense of this work can be met out of the general fund. The work will not be finished until December, probably later. That will be after next year's apportionment is made. If there should be a shortage it could easily be taken care of in the apportionment. There is nothing unusual in a street fund running short. It is impossible to figure within a cent of the cost of future work. I shall suggest to the general council, since the board of public works has referred the matter, that the finance committee be given power to act. The committee will have no trouble in financing this little bit of work."

"I am almost certain the revenue of the city will exceed the estimate by approximately $5,000. We always estimate the revenue at the minimum and the expenditure at the maximum so as to be safe. Last year the revenue exceeded anticipation by $7,539.57."

Anditor Kirkland said: "Already two funds, the city hospital and the police court, have exceeded their estimated income by fully $5,000."

A report from the auditor relative to the money in the hands of the city for operating the lighting plant was filed. It showed $672.78 available for the operation of the plant the remainder of the year. Of $8,000 appropriated for maintenance of the plant, $7,327.23 have been spent in its operation.

Bayonne, N. J., August 16.—James Pier, an Englishman, was fined $25 in police court for hissing the American flag during the performance at a theater last night. ## FEUD BATTLE

SHOOTERS OUT AND TWO ARE DEAD AND ONE DYING.

Hisner-Arnett Factions Clash at a Shooting Match and More Trouble Is Feared.

Salisbury, Ky., August 16.—The worst feud battle in the history of McGuffin county was fought last night about dusk on Middle Fork, four miles east of this place, between the Hisners and Arnetts on one side and the Gulletts on the other.

The one dead is Warner Arnett, a farmer of Hendricks.

Clay Gullett of Middle Fork, is fatally wounded.

John Gullett and Leander Hisner are slightly hurt.

Arnett was stabbed in the back, the knife point barely touching the heart, but he died without telling who was responsible for the knife thrust.

It appears that Leander Hisner and Clay Gullett were engaged in a friendly shooting match, while a number of their friends stood about siding with one or the other. Others were in the house talking to the Riflemen girls.

Arnett suddenly ran out of the house crying that he was killed, and dropped dead in full view of the crowd watching the shooting. Instantly there was a rush for guns, and soon nearly every one who could secure a gun was shooting, and witnesses say that the wonder is that many more were not killed.

Excitement is running high and further trouble is expected. This trouble occurred in the same neighborhood where Press Dyer a few months ago killed Arnett's brother, and there have been four or five fatal gun plays there since that time.

DISCRIMINATION AGAINST PADUCAH

Alleged By Lumber Brokers, Who Will Appeal.

It Is Claimed That Rehandling Rates Are Not Allowed and Memphis Is Benefited.

BROKERS HAVE MOVED AWAY.

Lumber dealers who allege that Paducah is discriminated against by the Illinois Central Railroad company in the shipment of lumber from Tennessee and other southern states are preparing to bring the matter before the Commercial club or some other body working for the welfare of the city, to attempt to have some favors shown timber handlers in this section.

"It is a fact that I can ship lumber out of Memphis to Chicago for 17 cents, where I have to pay 12 cents out of Paducah. From Memphis to Paducah I have to pay 10 cents, just seven cents under what the company would charge me to take it many hundred miles further—Chicago," a well known timber man stated.

"We do not know what causes this, but it is knocking Paducah out of a great deal of business. We do not know whose fault it is, but Paducah could have at present at least a half dozen of the biggest timber brokers' headquarters, because of the favorable location of the town. If it were not for the fact that the roads will give us no rehandling rates."

"We can ship timber out of Cairo, Joppa and even Brookport with rehandling rates, but cannot ship it into Paducah from the south."

The firms of W. A. Davis, Souder & company, the Raymond Lumber company and the Houston company offices were all moved to the last few years from Paducah. It is said that no attempt has been made by any one who has influence with the roads to have the rating in and out of Paducah revised so as to comply with ratings given other cities. It is further stated that a revision of the ratings and a formation of scales on an equal footing with other cities will not only serve to retain business here, but will attract more business, especially in the lumber trade. Millions of feet of lumber are bought in season by brokers and rehandled.

FOR SPECULATING MONEY WAS USED

Defense of F. P. Toof to Suit By Western National.

Debt of $10,500 Incurred While W. B. Smith Was President of the Concern.

SENSATIONAL CASE PENDING

A suit which has been filed in circuit court for several months and which was made public by the filing of an answer and an amended answer, will startle the public because of the prominence of the parties connected and the defense set up by the defendant; and when the case comes up for trial will probably create more interest because of the hearing the matter will have on the affairs of the Western National bank, at Louisville, W. B. Smith, its former president, and the settlement of the H. A. Rose estate.

The style of the suit which had been withheld from publication is the Western National bank, of Louisville, Ky., against F. P. Toof, and for a judgment against Toof for $10,500 in notes given over a year ago.

The suit was docketed for trial in the circuit court last term and an answer has been filed. The answer is that the debt was on a contract for gambling and not collectable at law. Toof through his attorneys, Iradshaw & Iradshaw, allege that the notes were made between W. B. Smith then president of the Western National bank, as the president and himself with the understanding that the money should be used for speculation on the fluctuations of the cotton market. His personal note was given as evidence of the loan only.

Attorneys Criss & Ross, representing the bank, filed a demurrer to the answer and the court sustained it, but permitted the filing of an amended answer which was done. The amendment states that the bank itself entered into the agreement. To this the demurrer of the bank's attorneys was overruled and the case will come up on its merits at the next term of circuit court in September.

The suit recalls other litigation in which the bank is involved and the settlement of the H. A. Rose estate. The bank holds a policy on the life of H. A. Rose, which was given by Rose and H. B. Lovins, as security for a loan. This suit is still pending. The policy was surrendered at the same time W. B. Smith was president of the Louisville Western National bank.

Depositions of Paducah parties will be taken at once, the case by agreement of the parties concerned to be tried on depositions.

It is one of the most sensational developments in the local courts in some time.

ONE HUNG MISSING.

Mrs. Millie Davis Sends to Store After It.

The mysterious disappearance of a gold ring, an heirloom, is causing Mrs. Millie Davis, of 620 Kentucky avenue considerable distress. She sent a colored boy who had worked in the family for years, and in whom she imposed the utmost confidence, to Wolfe's jewelry store for two rings. When the boy came back with the package, which seemed not to have been opened, only one ring was in it. At the store Mrs. Davis was told that both rings had been put in the box.

NEW BULLET TO BE USED.

Will Probably Be Accepted for Use in Army Rifle.

New York, August 16.—A special to the Times from Springfield, Mass. says Brig. Gen. Crozier, chief of ordnance in the United States army, said yesterday that the light, sharp-pointed rifle bullet which experts have been testing for a month past, had shown such satisfactory qualities that it would probably be accepted for use in the new army rifle, replacing the present service bullet. The principal advantages of the light bullet are its flat, trajectory and great penetrating power. On a 1,000 yard range it will be effective against infantry for 600 yards, while cavalry will be exposed for the entire distance.

BLUE JACKETS

START IN TO SOLVE SINGLE-FARE-TO-CONEY PROBLEM.

Car Is Side-tracked in Lonely Woods Half Mile Away and Left Until Morning.

New York, August 16.—One hundred of Uncle Sam's blue-jackets tried to solve the single-fare problem on the Coney Island traction line last night, nearing the station the Jackies refused to pay the extra muckle. An inspector took counsel, and then cut off the car and ran it back into a deserted woods siding a half mile, cut off the current and left the Jackies in darkness. Some were there this morning. Trolley cars are running to Coney today. The rioting has ceased. Pending the court decision passengers are paying ten cents.

DESTRUCTION OF FORESTS

Is Considered Abandoning By National Coopers' Association.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—The general condition of the American forests, the scarcity of proper timber for manufacturing uses and the propagation of timber grown were the principal subjects discussed before the members of the National Coopers' association, which began its eighth semi-annual convention here today. "Statistics show," said Dr. C. M. Pate, of Louisville, "that a great deal of apprehension exists among users of timber for manufacturing purposes, as inroads have been made on American forests for the past five years that will be hard to overcome."

W. P. Clarkson, of St. Louis, chairman of the executive committee, reported the general conditions of the organization to be good.

SIDEWALKS

Two Petition and Assume Extra Expense and Permission Is Granted.

The board of public works is conforming to the wishes of property owners in the matter of the width of sidewalks, and yesterday two residents were permitted to lay sidewalks 12 feet wide instead of six as the ordinance provides. It is only when the property owner petitions personally and agrees to stand the additional expense that the board grants the permit.

FELL ON HIS HEAD.

Driver Thrown From Wagon at the Wharfboat.

Lloyd Lowe, a driver for the Paducah Wharfboat company fell off his wagon at the wharf yesterday afternoon and had a deep gash cut in his head from contact with the hard cobble stones. Last night he suffered considerably, but it is not thought concussion will set in. He was sitting on a box in the end of his wagon when the mules gave a lurch sending him overboard to the ground.

G. A. R. GROWING IN MEMBERSHIP

Inroads of Death Counterbalanced Last Year.

Corporal Tanner's Address at National Encampment Contains Surprises.

ALL MEN OF HIGH CHARACTER.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 16.—In opening his annual address to the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, Corporal James Tanner, commander-in-chief of the organization, today made the somewhat surprising statement that, despite the inroads made by death, the Grand Army had actually increased in membership in the past year.

"I had considered it almost inevitable," he said, "that on this occasion I would be compelled to report to you a very considerable net loss in membership. On the contrary, I am happy to tell you that, by reason of the zealous interest taken in our order by many comrades, we have been able to more than offset the losses incurred by death, and that our order stands today 3,500 stronger in numbers than it did at Denver last September."

High Character.

Continuing, he said: "The character of the Grand Army never stood higher than it does at the present moment."

"Repeatedly during the past year, on various public occasions I have definitely called attention to the fact that while the public conscience has been shocked and outraged by the exposure of moral turpitude on the part of many of those who stood among the so-called most eminent men of the nation, eminent in financial and religious circles, trusted guardians of the interests of widows and orphans for whom loved ones, now dead and gone, had thought they had made careful safeguard to cover the necessities for comfort through all their natural life, men who in church circles stood on the very steps of the altar, trusted cupbearers of the cause of Christ, yet who, when their real characters were exposed, were exhibited in such poverty of soul and honor as compared to Lazarus, in his lowest state, might justly be considered a multi-millionaire—in all the first search it from top to bottom, the name of not a veteran of the civil war can be found."

Service Pension.

He spoke at length of the efforts made by his comrades and their officers in the direction of the enactment of a service pension law providing for $12 a month for every civil war veteran, in the interest of widows' pensions from $8 to $12 a month. The committee found that although such a law would take at present $34,000,000 additional out of the United States treasury, in another year the amount would be greatly decreased.

MYSTERY OF ROBBERY

Uncovered When Dying Servant Told of Hidden Jewels.

St. Louis, Aug. 16.—Acting under instructions cabled from England, John P. O'Brien, a laborer employed in the wrecking of the World's fair buildings, has unearthed an aligator bag containing jewels valued at $50,000, which were stolen from Mr. and Mrs. P. Henry Clayton, of Devonshire, England, during a visit to the Louisiana Purchase exposition two years ago. About a month ago a Hindoo servant, who had been in their employ during their trip, was fatally injured by an elephant in India, and on his deathbed confessed that he stole the jewels while in St. Louis.

He said he had dropped them into a hole in the wall of the Manufacturers' building.

BETTER CALL THE WHOLE THING OFF

Says Col. Watterson Concerning Democratic Primary.

Advises Party Leaders to Return to Old Order and Give Poor Man a Chance.

LANGUAGE QUITE TO THE POINT

Under the editorial caption: "Back to the Old Order," the Courier-Journal calls for the abandonment of the Democratic state primary in the following language:

"What the Democrats of Kentucky most need at this time is a square deal. What too many aspirants for office seem to want is 'a little the best of it.' Old ideas of honor of brotherly love and of the party welfare appear to have dropped out, and in lieu of them how to play for advantage, more or less unfair, rules the roost among contemporary file-leaders and party managers.

"That which is true of the Democrats is equally and unhappily true of the Republicans and the conditions existing in Kentucky do not much vary from those existing in most of the states.

"We are living in an age of 'practical politics' and too often 'practical politics' means double-dealing and bad-faith, dark-closets and hocus-pocus, each for himself, the devil to get the hindmost, in every contest from the highest to the lowest.

"Thus it is that 'practical politics' doth become dog-eat-dog politics. It was dead sure when a primary election was called a year in advance of the general election that we should have a middle before we got well into it. In the beginning the Courier-Journal entreated its party associates to see this and not to invite trouble. We pointed out that the nomination of such a primary—to start with—would give the recipient no clear assurance of election. It would carry no moral weight with it, and was bound to carry many handicaps. In the case of United States senator, in especial, it would lack all binding force, and would not be worth having. No legislature chosen a year later would hold itself bound to respect or obey it. In a naked legislature, such as we are likely to have the longest pole would be sure to fetch the persimmons.

"Whoever may have been responsible for such an unwise proceeding flew in the face both of reason and popular sentiment. The assessed money charges shut out the poor man altogether. Nobody but moneyed-men can enter. It seemed to have some sinister design. Yet, may it never be said of any Democratic leader in Kentucky—

"He dugged a pit—he digged it deep. He digged it for his brother; But, for his sin, He tumbled in.

The hole he meant for 'other.' 'Better call the whole thing off, gentlemen: It begins to smell already, and before you are done with it, it will stink. And, in that event, what of the campaign to follow? The Democrats owe their possession of Kentucky to the fatuous, blind folly of the Republicans, rather than to any merit, or wisdom of their own. More unpopular leadership than we have commonly had could hardly be conceived. It is only a question of time when, if he persevered in, we shall lose the state."

Concluding, Mr. Watterson says, referring to the primary: "In short and in fine, call the d—d thing off and give a poor man a chance to get a nomination, as in days of yore, without money and without price."

AT GIVEN SIGNAL TERRORISTS MOVE

Assassination the Order in All Parts of Poland.

Revolver Shots and Detonations of Bombs Heard in Every City in the Land.

BLOODY RECORD OF THE DAY.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 16.—Acting apparently with a definite plan and at a signal, terrorists and revolutionists yesterday inaugurated a carnival of murderous attacks with bombs and revolvers on the police and troops in various cities in Poland.

Echoes of revolvers used on the police and troops in various cities in Poland, were heard from Samara, Ufa, Yalta, Kiev and even far away as China, where Acting Chief of Police Gorpinehenko was slain almost on his own doorstep.

Policemen and soldiers were shot down like rabbits in the streets. Their assailants who traveled in small bands almost all escaped among the terrorized but sympathetic populace. The only considerable capture was a band of ten men who had invaded a grog shop and killed several soldiers.

Other Polish cities singled out by terrorists were Lodz, where six soldiers, three patrolmen and the wife of a police captain were wounded by explosion of bombs in the police station, and two soldiers and two terrorists were killed in the streets. At Radom, a bomb was thrown into the police station and killed the wife and child of the captain; at Vlodziesk the chief of police was slain and at Plock, at a given signal, policemen on all posts were simultaneously attacked and several wounded.

Two attacks on the railways occurred today near Vln, revolutionists in each case flagging the train, hursting open the doors of the mail cars with bombs and rifling the registered pouches. The booty in one case amounted to $15,000; in the other case the amount is not known.

An Imperial messenger announces that owing to the serious revolutionary outbreak the whole of Caucasus with the exception of a few districts is under martial law.

Many Killed at Warsaw.

WARSAW, Aug. 16.—Revolutionary conspirators killed 17 policemen, four gendarmes, seven infantrymen and wounded a score more here. The soldiers fired a volley into the crowd killing 15 and wounding 130.

Revolutionists Desperate.

Kiev, Aug. 16.—Members of the revolutionists' committee entered a shop here and demanded a contribution of $150. While waiting for the money a member of the secret police intervened whereupon the revolutionists fled. Two policemen who barred the way were shot down. One revolutionist was arrested, another committed suicide rather than surrender and a third escaped.

Peasants Storm Jail.

Uzovka, Aug. 16.—A band of peasants from a neighboring village attempted to storm the jail at Ivanovka and release some of their friends who had been arrested for participation in the agrarian disorders. Cossack guards were forced to fire and killed five and wounding two of the mob.

Officers Put Up Fight.

Samara, Aug. 16.—While the captain of police and captain of the army were driving in the suburbs they were attacked by an armed band and the coachman was killed. The officers defended themselves in the carriage until the arrival of the patrol. In the ensuing engagement one revolutionist was killed and another, in fleeing, fell and a bomb which he was carrying exploded blowing off his hand. All the survivors were captured.

Not His Fault, Though.

"It is a fine thing to be brave and generous and noble," said Bills Perry, the noted writer, editor and teacher of Harvard, "but sometimes we are generous and noble against our will. Then, of course, we deserve no credit.

"Of this type was a young married man whose father-in-law, a reputed millionaire burst in on him one day and groaned:

"'All is lost! I am utterly ruined!'" "Ahem," said the son-in-law; "then I married for love, after all."

Car Backs Into Tool House.

The slack in a string of empty clinder cars caused one to ride the clinder pit tracks last night, and break into the clinder pit laborers' tool house, a box car sitting on the ground at the end of the pit. The first car into the pit climbed the end and pushed its way into the tool house.

To the Man Who Appropriates $1,000 Annually for Advertising

A great many of Lord & Thomas' most successful clients began their advertising with appropriations of a thousand dollars and even less.

THE Lord & Thomas Agency has grown to be the largest advertising agency in America through the successful development of small advertisers.

Today our volume of business—$4,000,000.00 per year—represents the appropriations of nearly 700 clients, so the average appropriation is less than $6,000.00 per year.

Some of our clients who started with small appropriations are now placing over $100,000.00 yearly with us, and their businesses have grown and are continuing to grow in proportion.

The great majority of our clients are now appropriating less than $3,000.00 per year. Our future growth depends upon the development of these $3,000.00-a-year advertisers into the $100,000.00-a-year class.

We want an opportunity to show you how YOU can start advertising with a small appropriation and get into the $100,000.00-a-year class.

The small investor always is in greatest need of protection for his investment. We realize that the $1,000 appropriation of the beginner means more to him than the $100,000.00 appropriation of the older advertiser. We govern ourselves accordingly. We want to tell you how we safe-guard your advertising appropriation by basing your investment on the only trustworthy guide in advertising—the Lord & Thomas Record of Results.

Our exclusive Record of Results is the classified, indexed tabulation of actual results from hundreds of small and large advertising campaigns.

This record is interpreted, and the positive knowledge gained thereby is applied to your business by the ablest and highest salaried corps of advertising men in America.

That is why we can and do develop small advertisers, because we eliminate practically all of the waste in advertising due to the use of wrong copy and wrong media.

We want to explain to you, in person, the detailed workings of the Lord & Thomas Record of Results and just how our organization can apply what it teaches to your business.

We want to explain to you why we are particularly anxious for small accounts and how we are peculiarly organized to develop them with the greatest care.

One of our representatives is in your city every few days looking after the interests of some of our present clients. That is why we are advertising in this newspaper—to you—NOW.

A letter granting us an interview in your office will not obligate you in any way.

We are issuing a series of small books (cloth bound) covering advertising in all its phases, which we send free to interested advertisers.

ABUSES OF THE PRESS.

Honest criticism by the press, even though not always couched in the most respectful terms, must be expected by all public servants, and this right to criticize and its liberal exercise on the part of the press constitutes the bulwark of our popular institutions.

This criticism may with propriety, when well grounded suspicions are held, break into open charges, if sufficiently specific to shelter the innocent from sharing the stigma with the guilty. But, too often irresponsible newspapers make these charges without foundation. Too often they construct a superficial incident into the evidence of grave corruption, and then permit the general language of their vague accusations to comprehend every official that could possibly have any connection with the transaction. It is this flagrant abuse of the freedom of the press that holds back many honest, capable citizens from entering a political career. They esteem their reputations too highly to place themselves in a position to become hampered by the mud-guns of a vicious and irresponsible press. Were the charges of corruption always made specific, the object of the attack might exonerate himself in court; but the libel laws are evaded by accusing the general council of graft, or the board of public works of dealing with its own members, or whatever particular body is aimed at. To the credit of the press let it be said, that the majority of the newspapers are above this sort of thing; but one in each community is sufficient to prevent sensitive men braving its assaults.

Here in Paducah members of public bodies who have given their time and patience freely to the city, have resigned at the end of one term, sick of a work in which their best endeavors meet only with charges of wrong doing and in which their most sincere actions are misconstrued.

No paper will respond more quickly to down actual wrong than The Sun, but this paper is not seeking a reputation at the expense of truth and decency, and all men who do their duty, without regard to party affiliations, will receive its commendation, while it reserves the privilege of criticizing and suggesting as its best judgment directs.

Carping criticism, slanderous insinuations and broad accusations are not the earmarks of righteous journalism, and the newspaper that indulges in such extravagances should be classed with the individual, whose tongue wags the same way. The latter mouths his facts to suit his views; the obnoxious paper colors its news to match its editorial policy.

RIVER NEWS

River Stages.
Cairo	17.1	0.4	rise
Charlottesville	6.3	1.2	rise
Cincinnati	19.9	1.6	rise
Evansville	8.7	0.6	rise
Florence	3.1	0.1	fall
Johnsboro	6.1	0.0	st'd
Louisville	7.0	1.5	rise
Mt. Carmel	1.5	0.2	rise
Nashville	9.2	0.1	fall
Pittsburg	5.3	1.7	rise
Davis Island Dam	5.4	0.2	fall
St. Louis	13.6	0.1	rise
Mt. Vernon	7.8	0.7	rise
Paducah	8.0	0.3	rise

After standing two days the river has commenced to rise and if its course can be judged by the records for last August it will continue to do so until the latter part of the month. The gauge registered a stage of 8.0 this morning, a rise of 0.2 in the last 24 hours. On August 16, 1905, the gauge registered a stage of 8.5. The month ended with a stage of 10 feet. The unprecedented rains for this month probably will cause the river to rise to the same manner. At Cincinnati yesterday there was a stage of 18 feet and a similar rise in the other rivers tributary to the Ohio will make a good stage here throughout this month. More rain has fallen in the first half of this month than fell altogether last August.

The Electrica, one of the Cumberland river boats, and the largest one, will arrive next week to go on the ways for repairs. All the Cumberland river boats have been repaired here this summer, the Buffalo and Electrica at the ways and the Dunbar and Hoh Dudley at the dry docks. Captain Hunter is superintending all repairing of these boats.

The John A. Woods passed up night before last with a big tow of empties for Pittsburg. The rise ought to see several large tows of coal coming down.

The Kentucky will arrive tonight from the Tennessee river and leave Saturday evening at 6 o'clock on the return trip.

The John Hopkins was the regular Evansville packet today.

The Dick Fowler had a fair trip to Cairo this morning, better in passenger business than in freight.

Of course the largest benefit from a 9 foot stage will be the possibility of running boats all the year round. But all river towns will get a more direct benefit from it than one which, considering the ponderous slowness of congress even when it goes its best pace and the necessarily long time needed to complete the work, will be several years off before realization. The actual construction which ought to begin within a year, will stimulate river business all along the line from the increased labor required to do the work. That means that the boat stores along the river will sell more and the boats will get fat contracts hauling the material of construction, but chiefly, at all the towns along the river, the laborers will spend their earnings. When it is remembered that the work will cost millions, it is apparent that a 9 foot stage will be a considerable industrial stimulation to the entire Ohio Valley.

Official Forecasts.

The Ohio from Evansville to Cairo, will rise during the next several days. The Tennessee from Florence to the mouth, not much change during the next 24 to 36 hours. The Mississippi from Chester to Republican Chairman of Three Counties Enjoined From Calling Primary.

APPEAL OF CASE IS TAKEN

Morgantown, Ky., August 16. — At a special term of the Butler circuit court, held here to try the case of F. A. Anderson against S. M. Hagland and others, Judge J. M. Galloway granted a perpetual injunction enjoining the defendant as chairman of the Republican county committee of Ohio, Butler and Edmonson, from holding a primary for the selection of a candidate for representative in the said county composing the new legislative district created by the last legislature under house bill 216A. Judgment was rendered declaring the act unconstitutional and an appeal was granted, which will be prepared at once and filed for the coming September term of the court of appeals.

Judge W. M. Holt and George Du Rette, of Louisville, were present and represented the plaintiff and the defendants were represented by N. T. Howard and G. V. Willis, of this place.

Theatrical Notes

Only three chances remain to enjoy the season of standard opera at Wallace park Casino. The first tonight is the ever popular and tuneful "Chimes of Normandy." Tomorrow night the "Blossoms of the East," the opening bill, will be repeated and on Saturday night "Olivette" again will be the bill. Last night the company sang the exquisite "Gloire-Gloria." It has been so long since Paducahans have heard these old standard operas, which have been revived successfully in other cities several times, that this engagement is proving a musical treat.

DEATHS OF A DAY

William A. Smith, who died Tuesday night on the Hinkleville road, was buried yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Mt. Vernon cemetery. He was 80 years old and lived here until a year or more ago. He leaves one daughter Mrs. Adcock, of the Hinkleville road.

Mrs. R. G. Treas.

Mrs. R. G. Treas, 38 years old, wife of the well-known lumber man of Benton, died last night at her home of blood poisoning. She had quinsy and blood poisoning developed. She was an estimable Christian woman. She is survived by her husband and five children. Both Mr. and Mrs. Treas were well-known to Paducah, where they have relatives.

ONE-FOURTH OFF ON ODD TROUSERS

Buy a Pair and Make an Old Suit New

THIS sale is probably awaited with more interest than any of our money-saving cut price sales, with the exception of the suit sale, as the economical dressers recognize the opportunities it affords of making a new suit out of an old one by the addition of a pair of odd trousers. The trousers usually wear out long before the coat to a suit seems worn, and the addition of a new pair renews the suit.

In this sale we have put all of our odd trousers, and there are just any number of most excellent bargains in the lot--the famous Paragon trousers being among them.

ROUTE CHANGED TO UNION DEPOT

Ninth Street Tracks Abandoned By Traction Co.

First Trip Made Over Eighth Street By Car at 4 O'clock Yesterday.

OTHER LINES BEING HURRIED.

Without pomp or ceremony the Paducah Traction company changed its Union depot route yesterday afternoon, and because there were no advance newspaper notices or blowing of trumpets to herald the fact, many residents waited in vain for the cars after work hours on South Ninth street.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon car No. 95, Conductor John Cook and Motorman John Beavers made the first trip over the Eighth street road, running from the Union depot to Rowlandtown. At Eighth and Tennessee streets the curve had just been finished—the last bolt screwed in—and the car was ordered over it. The Ninth street curve was abandoned and the new route will now be used exclusively.

Other work is progressing rapidly in the laying of new track over the routes selected by the traction company, and just as soon as the work is finished the lines will be placed in service.

Switch engine No. 72 became wild and dived into the local Illinois Central turntable pit last night and blocked traffic out of the round house from one side for some time.

Now, therefore, in pursuance to the motion under seal of said court, to me directed I do hereby give public notice to all persons claiming said steamer Monte Bauer, or in any way interested therein, that they be and appear before the district court of the United States in the city of Paducah, Ky., on or before the 3rd day of September 1906, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, then and there to interpose their claims and to make their allegations in that behalf.

ROCK IS THROWN AT COUNCILMAN

C. C. Duval Narrowly Escapes Serious Injury.

Assaulted by Unknown Person on Seventh Street Near Jefferson Last Night.

CANNOT ACCOUNT FOR ATTACK.

What is believed to have been attempt to kill Councilman C. C. Duval was perpetrated last night about 9 o'clock on North Seventh street, while the councilman was going toward his home at Seventh and Boyd streets.

He was walking north on Seventh street on the east side of the street, and when just in the rear of the First Christian church, a heavy rock was hurled at him from behind the concrete mixer standing in the street, the rock striking a telephone pole a few inches behind him and earoming past his head.

The conditions under which the missile was hurled precluded the idea of an accident, and Councilman Duval did not tarry to investigate the origin of the assault. As he ran he glanced around and saw a figure making off in the opposite direction.

Councilman Duval does not know whether to ascribe the assault to a would-be robber or to some enemy, who was seeking revenge.

Prof. Tyler, of Amherst college, said recently: "A man can live comfortably without brains; no man ever existed without a digestive system. The dyspeptic has neither faith, hope or charity." Day by day people realize the importance of caring for their digestion; realize the need of the use of a little corrective after over-eating. A corrective like Kodol For Dyspepsia. It digests what you eat. Sold by Lang Bros.

—Our pianos are known; so are we. Ask your neighbor about them; some have used them over thirty years; they are guaranteed from seven years to indefinite time. D. H. Baldwin & company, 520 Broadway.

In this state it is not necessary to serve a five day's notice for eviction of a cold. Use the original laxative cough syrup, Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar. No opiates. Sold by Lang Bros.

The Manager Of the B. & A.

By VAUGHAN KESTER

Copyright, 1901, by Harper & Brothers

The instant he saw him the doctor rose from his seat on the steps and came quickly down the walk. There was no mistaking the cordiality he gave his greeting, for he intended there should be none. Mrs. Emory, too, took pains that he should feel the friendliness of her sentiment toward him. Constantine, however, appeared embarrassed and ill at ease, and Dan's face grew very white. He felt that he had no real appreciation of the changed conditions since his father's story had become public property. He saw it made a difference in the way his friends viewed him. He had become hardened, and it had been impossible for him to foresee just how it would affect others, but to those people it was plainly a shock. The very kindness he had experienced at the hands of the doctor and Mrs. Emory only served to show how great the shock was. In their gracious, generous fashion they had sought to make it easy for him.

Oakley and the editor did not speak. Oakley seemed the roughest hypocrite under the circumstances. A barely perceptible inclination of the head sufficed, and then Hyder turned abruptly to Miss Emory and resumed his conversation with her.

Dan seated himself beside the doctor on the steps. He was completely crushed. He hadn't the wit to leave, and he knew that he was a fool for staying. What was the good in carrying on the uphill fight any longer? Courage is a true quality, no doubt, but it is also well for a man to have some enough to know when he is fairly beaten, and he was fairly beaten.

He took stock of the situation. Quite independent of his hatred of the fellow, he resented Hyder's presence there beside Constantine. But what was the use of struggling? The sooner he finished all thought of her the better it would be for him. His chances had never been worth considering.

He stole a glance at the pair, who had drawn a little to one side and were talking in low tones and with the fluency of long acquaintance. He owned they were wonderfully well suited to each other. Hyder was no mean rival, but it came to that. The world had given him its rule. He knew perfectly the life with which Miss Emory was familiar. His people had been the right sort. He was well born and well bred, and he showed it.

It dawned upon the unwilling Oakley slowly and by degrees that to Constantine Emory he must be nothing more or less than the son of a murderer. He had never quite looked at it in that light before. He had been occupied with the effect rather than the cause, but he was sure that if Hyder had told her his father's history he had told the most of his opportunity. He wondered how people felt about a thing of this kind. He knew now what his position would be. Disgrace is always vicious in its consequences. The innocent generally suffer indistinguishably along with the guilty.

The doctor talked a steady stream at Oakley, but he managed to say little that made any demand on Dan's attention. He was sorry for the young man. He had liked him from the start, and he believed but a small part of what he had heard. It is true he had had the particulars from Hyder, but Hyder said what he had to say with his usual lazy indifference, as if his interest was the slightest and had vouchered for no part of it.

He would hardly have dared admit that he himself was the head and front of the offending Dr. Emory would not have understood how it could have been any business of his. It would have finished him with the latter. As it was, he had been quick to resent his glib, sneering tone.

But Dan's manner convinced the doctor that there were some grounds for the charges made by the hands when they denounced Roger Oakley's dismissal, or else he was terribly hurt by the occurrence. While Dr. Emory was reaching this conclusion there was coming himself for his stupidity. It would have been much easier for him to have remained away until Antioch quieted down. Perhaps it would have been easier, too, to his friends, but since he had blundered he would try and see Miss Emory again. She should know the truth. It was characteristic of him that he should wish the matter put straight, even when there was no special advantage to be gained.

Some afterward he took his leave. The doctor followed him down to the gate. There was a certain constraint in the manner of the two men, now that they were alone together. As they passed by the gate Dr. Emory broke silence with:

"For God's sake, Oakley, what is this I hear about your father? I'd like your assurance that it is all a pack of lies."

A lump came into Dan's throat, and he answered huskily:

"I am sure it is not at all as you have heard. I am sure the facts are quite different from the account you have heard."

"But—"

"No, I can't deny it outright, much as I'd like to."

"You don't mean— Pardon me, for, of course, I have no right to ask."

Dan turned away his face. "I don't know any one who has a better right to ask," he said.

"Well, I shouldn't have asked if I'd thought there was a word of truth in the story. I had hoped I could deny it for you. That was all."

"I guess I didn't appreciate how you would view it. I have lived in the shadow of it so long."

The doctor looked aghast at the admission. He had not understood before that Dan was acknowledging the murder. Even yet he could not bring himself to believe it. Dan moved off a step as if to go.

"Do you mean it is true, Oakley?" he asked, detaching him.

"Substantially, yes. Good night," he added hopelessly.

"Wait," hastily. "I don't want you to go just yet." He put out his hand frankly. "It's nothing you have done anyhow," he said as an afterthought.

"No, but I begin to think it might just as well have been."

Dr. Emory regarded him earnestly. "My boy, I'm awfully sorry for you, and I'm afraid you have got in for more than you can manage. It looks as though your troubles were all coming in a bunch."

Dan smiled.

"My antecedents won't affect the situation down at the shops, if that is what you mean. The men may not like me any the better or respect me any the more for knowing of them, but they will discover that that will make no difference where our relations are concerned."

"To be sure. I only meant that public opinion will be pretty strong against you. It somehow has an influence," ruefully.

"I suppose it has," rather sadly.

"Do you have to stay and face it? It might be easier, you know—I don't mean exactly to run away."

"I am pledged to put the shops and road on a paying basis for General Cornish. He'd about made up his mind to sell to the M. and W. If he does it will mean the closing of the shops, and they will never be opened up again. That will wipe Antioch off the map. Not so very long ago I had a good deal of sympathy for the people who would be ruined, and I can't change simply because they have, can I? With a look on his face which belonged to his father."

The doctor stroked his beard meditatively and considered the question.

"I suppose there is such a thing as duty, but don't you think, under the circumstances, your responsibility is really very light?"

Dan laughed softly.

He looked at the unwilling Oakley slowly and by degrees that to Constantine Emory he must be nothing more or less than the son of a murderer. He had never quite looked at it in that light before. He had been occupied with the effect rather than the cause, but he was sure that if Hyder had told her his father's history he had told the most of his opportunity. ## PERSECUTIONS OF THE RUSSIAN JEWS

Arise From Several Causes
Says Observer.

Jews, Officials, Churchmen and Representatives Give Different Versions.

INCITED BY THE AUTHORITIES.

I have asked almost everybody I have seen in St. Petersburg about the reasons and causes for the persecution of the Jews, and have received a variety of information, although the inquirer on such problems is always told that no foreigner can understand the psychology of the Russian race or its mental processes. It is the almost unanimous opinion that the primary cause of the massacres are political and economical rather than religious, although there is an undercurrent of fanaticism among the Russian peasantry which has frequently been appealed to by the leaders of the "progromes"—a new word recently coined to describe the frequent uprisings instigated by the government for the looting and massacre of members of Jewish communities.

The chief causes are jealousy of the success of the Jewish race in commercial, financial, professional, literary and scientific careers, its aggressiveness and ambition and enterprise, its sobriety, industry and thrift, and its ability to thrive under circumstances where a Russian is unable to make a living. The public prejudice against the race is accounted for in that way. The opposition of the government and the police is attributed to vengeance because the Jews have been the most persistent, the most resourceful and the most effective revolutionaries. When some desperate deed is done you may be sure that the chief actor is a Jew or a Pole. When the police are untold humbugged and humiliated, you may be sure that a Jew has devised the plan. The ablest revolutionary leaders are Jews. The men who led the strikes last winter and those who have stirred up the greatest amount of trouble among the peasants were Jews. Jewish revolutionists constitute about 50 per cent of the membership of the secret societies, and they are the most intelligent, active and ingenious. Nearly all of the revolutionary leaders I have met in St. Petersburg are Jews, and the editors and reporters of the revolutionary papers belong to that race.

That accounts for the attitude of the ministry and the police.

Jewish Deputies.
The Jewish deputies in the duma tell me that, in their opinion, the government and the police are responsible for the massacres as well as the persecutions. If they so desired they could prevent both. They assert that no mob has ever been organized against a Jewish community that has not been led or inspired by a government official. They assert that there has not been a Jew persecuted or robbed or murdered in Russia for the last ten years for which the government was not directly responsible.

A Catholic View.

Archbishop Roop of the Roman Catholic church, who is a member of the duma from the city of Wilna, where nearly one-half of the population are Jews told me that in his diocese there was no religious prejudice whatever, that the members of the three faiths—Roman Catholic, Greek orthodox and the Jewish—lived in perfect accord and that there would never be the slightest friction among them were it not instigated by officials, soldiers and the police, who formed an entirely distinct group from the rest of the community, and were more frequently disturbers than preservers of the peace. He declared that this was equally true in the city of Bialystok, which is also in his diocese, although a religious proclamation intended to arouse the followers of Christ was circulated very largely among the ignorant classes for several days previous to the recent massacre.

"If the police and other officials would let the Jews alone," said Monsignor Roop with great emphasis, "there would be no trouble about the rest of the people.—William E. Curtis in Chicago Record-Herald.

Remorse.

"Remorse," said Mayor Wells of St. Louis, "is an excellent thing when deep enough."

"The trouble with most wrong-doers, when remorse overtakes them, is that the emotion is feeble and shallow."

"The average type of remorse was that of a pickpocket who sent last year this note to a man whom he had robbed of $100:

"Dear Sir: I stole your money. Remorse gnaws my conscience, and I return herewith $1.50."

RESUSCITATION OF TRAFFIC ON RIVERS PLAN OF FUTURE

The Movement Has Already Become a General One And The Prospects For Inland Waterways At The Present Time Are Brighter Than Ever Before In The History of The Country's Steamboat Trade.

When the victor of Waterloo signed the Purchase treaty, which ceded the Louisiana territory to the United States, he said: "I part with an empire. The Mississippi river drains a valley that in one hundred years will be the greatest power on earth."

Before railroads invaded the states, the packets and catamarans played a most conspicuous part in the building of our nation. The growth of our national commerce was dependent upon their services. Lessers rivers lighted down to the wharves of the great father of waters the raw produce of the world's widest and richest valley. The intercourse between young and ambitious cities was conducted by boat. There were no "lines" then. Nature built them and they were free. Let them use them who would. There were no "combinations," rate deals, compromises or syndicate agreements. It was the era of wholesome competition—the days of a "square deal."

Packet owners vied with one another for a "lead" on the river trade. Embellishment was added to comfort in the open bidding for patronage. Speed and freight travel were coveted quite as much as the passenger patronage. To improve the former, while enlarging the latter projecting decks were built, reaching far out over the shallow, flat-bottomed hulls. The keenest kind of competition drove all rates to the bottom notch.

In those days of river romance, gambling crept into the cabin life as an indispensable part of the social etiquette of the time.

In the early days there was a stigma in being passed on the river which no proud pilot could ever afford to wear. Boilers were imperfectly made, and the impassible craving for traffic coin forced even inflammable cargo close to the furnace doors. And, in the face of all this wicked risk of human life, resin and pitch were added to the furnace fires and the safety valves weighted down, that a rival packet might be overtaken on its course.

Between 1816, when steamboat traffic was becoming important on western waters, and 1871, when it was waning, more than 1,000 vessels were lost on the Mississippi and its tributaries.

All this foolhardiness paved the way for an exaggerated welcome of the railroad. And when the railroads came they ignored the river banks and cut across country and drove into the centre and not on to the edges of things. This gave birth to new cities, and many an old river town suffered a shock thereby which brought its enterprises to swift decay.

The Illinois and the picturesque Wisconsin today exhibit the pathos that lies in the wake of a dead river. Towns that once clung to the bold shale rocks that oppose the broad current's course have crumbled to decay, and the enterprises which they once knew have taken root on nearby level lands, where traffic runs by rail. Moss-covered porticos lean heavily against the receding walls of territorial hotels, and the shelves of retail stores of the glorious forties are empty and broken.

But there are left those who still love the old river—those who believe in it, and those who, despite the advent of the locomotive still hold with Napoleon that a country is great as its rivers are useful. Nine years ago the commercial interests vested along the banks of the Ohio river crystallized in a river improvement association which set itself resolutely to the task of educating congress and the people of the river states to the vast commercial importance of deepening the channel from Pittsburgh to Cairo. They took the declaration of Andrew Carnegie that "the republic now has more than ten thousand miles of connected river and lake navigation, which supplies the cheapest inland transportation for materials in the world," and added: "The improvement of the Ohio will make it still cheaper."

The Upper Mississippi River improvement association, which holds its fourth annual convention in Minneapolis this coming October, and which will join with the Ohio River improvement association and representatives of the lower Mississippi states in holding a great valley river improvement convention in St. Louis this coming November. This convention will debate the possibilities of, and make recommendations for, the development of a heavy freight channel from the Twin Cities to New Orleans and from Great Falls, Montana, on the upper Missouri, to Pittsburgh on the Ohio. The value to the whole nation of these improved waterways, taken in conjunction with the improvements now being made on the Illinois river and the Chicago canal, opening a ship passage from the Great Lakes to the Gulf, cannot be over estimated. If Mr. Carnegie is right in his claim that our internal waterways already offered the cheapest transportation in the world these free arteries of commerce will at once control the traffic rates of the twenty-two states they drain. These states already produce the bulk of our agricultural wealth; they already support more than twice as many manufacturing plants as the other outlying states, and the value of their finished products is estimated at over ten billion of dollars a year.

As the market value of any finished product is estimated upon the producer's price, plus the cost of transportation, the opening of these great waterways to freight traffic will benefit both the producer through a larger demand for his goods, and the consumer through a lessened cost for the same.

President Roosevelt has said that the highways of commerce should be open to all on equal terms—a condition which is not likely to maintain, even through the enforcement of recent legislation that has been directed to that end. When the railroads are brought directly into competition with independent carriers on a common highway they will confront a controlling influence far more effective than any rate bill can ever hope to be. The policy of charging all the traffic will bear is an obstacle to industrial expansion. A low cost of conveyance is a necessity to all the cruder products. Moreover the productive capacity of our great interior is developing faster than our facilities of transportation.

The people of the Empire state by direct vote at the ballot box have appropriated one hundred and one million dollars, or more than five times that required to channel the upper Mississippi to build a ship canal from Lake Erie to the Hudson. Thus may the cargo loaded at Chicago or Duluth sail undisturbed to Hamburg, Havre, or Liverpool. The city of Manchester, England, has spent one hundred million to get an outlet to the sea. Germany, France and England are expending even larger sums in the construction of absolutely new cross-country waterways. And this significant work is being done abroad in spite of the fact that their railroads are under government control.

Any canalage of our own rivers, however, must have a world-wide and not a local, significance. The development of river industries must mean something larger than the quadruplication of Keokuk or La Crosse. Long before the Panama canal is ready to complete this great drama of commerce we will transmit our largest cargoes from the heart of the continent to the Gulf of Mexico without breaking bulk. When the waters of these seas meet in that thread of land, New Orleans will be the Oriental front door to half of the states of our nation.

Canada and Argentina are contending with each other for the supremacy in the exportation of wheat to foreign markets, and the race is as close as the population battle which Milwaukee and Detroit have waged for the past forty years. The Dominion wheat, when brought to the headwaters of the Mississippi or shipped from Port Arthur through the Great Lakes and the Erie canal, will have an advantage abroad that the grain submitted to the tax of a transcontinental rail haul can not hope to share.

Thus may the resuscitation of a river strengthen the friendship and lessen the difference between the neighbor nations, by serving both with impartial benefits. Between the broad current of the Saskatchewan and the headwaters of the Mis-issippi lies the richest wheat belt in the world. It would cost indefinitely less than the amount congress proposes to expend on Panama to grid-iron this great productive country both in Canada and the states, with a Mura-like system of navigable inland water ways, binding the Great Lakes to Hudson Bay, and the Saskatchewan to the Missouri, by which irrespective of flag, the treasures of a continent would find release and the interests of a homogeneous people receive their due promotion.—Richard Lloyd Jones in Colliers.

ONLY $2 DUTY FROM BIG LINER
And Customs Men Have to Assess That on a Near-Gold Watch.

The worst case of "frost" that the government ever encountered in its business of collecting duties from returning tourists was experienced today when the customs officials examined the baggage of 281 cabin passengers who arrived in the North German Lloyd steamer Friedrich der Grosse from Bremen, says a New York telegram.

Every one of the first and second cabin passengers made sworn declarations that they had nothing dutiable in their personal effects. Twenty clerks went down the list to get the passengers' declarations, and forty inspectors were at the dock to facilitate the work of inspection. One inspector found a near-gold watch that a second cabin passenger had failed to declare, and the passenger was taxed $2 duty. When the customs cashier made his return with the solitary $2 bill the customs-house officials were amazed. The incident is unparalleled in government records.

Treasurer Treat's Treat.
Charles H. Treat, treasurer of the United States, several times heard that one of his negro messengers had a peculiarly disagreeable manner. He sent for the darky, who acknowledged his failing, but said he really could not help it.

"I's got indigestion so bad I just natchally can't be pleased wif myself," he said.

"Why don't you do something for your complaint?" asked Mr. Treat. "I spend most o' my money for medicine but they ain't nothin' reaches it. Ye see, Mr. Treat, I ain't got no teeth, so I can't chew nothin'." He opened a cavernous mouth, which contained but two stumps.

The treasurer handed him a $10 bill, saying: "Here you go and get a set of teeth and we'll see if that won't improve your temper."
